SHAMANISM AND CREATIVITY

Training in Core Shamanism with Leslie Conton, Ph.D.

May 19 – 20th 2012, BELLINGHAM, WA

Saturday & Sunday 9:30 am - 5:30 pm

COURSE DESCRIPTION Creativity is so ancient that it is at once fundamental and complex, even a driving force in our lives. Shamanism brings a fresh approach to Westerners for cultivating their creative potential. In this workshop, based on years of research, participants will have the opportunity to enhance their creativity through the practice of shamanic methods. Selected historical and anthropological examples will illustrate connections between shamanism and creative abilities, and a variety of specific shamanic exercises will be taught that participants can apply to their personal lives.

PLEASE BRING: Rattle or a drum if you have one. Wear comfortable layered clothing and warm socks; bring an eye cover, cushion and pad/blanket, a pen and notebook to record your journeys, a sack lunch for each day and drinking water.

ABOUT THE INSTRUCTOR: Dr. Leslie Conton is a Professor of Cultural Anthropology at Fairhaven College of Interdisciplinary Studies, Western Washington University in Bellingham, Washington. She is Founding Faculty for the Foundation for Shamanic Studies in California, a practitioner of core shamanism, and a certified Harner Method shamanic counselor. Over the past 30 years, she has studied with many shamans from Papua New Guinea, China, the United States, and, most recently, Tibet & Nepal. Dr. Conton is a talented, inspirational teacher and gifted shamanic healer.

PREREQUISITE: The FSS Basic Workshop, The Way of the Shaman: Shamanic Journeying, Power, and Healing with an authorized FSS Faculty member. Participants may enjoy Sandra Harner's article: Shamanism and Creativity©: <http://www.shamanism.org/articles/article12.html>
